2019 Week 30

A turbulent week in pig marketing this week! A German export error has slashed pig prices across Northern Europe according to the Weekly Tribune, this was following on from a pork export ban from a German company pro food GMBH, this disrupted trade from Belgium, The Netherlands and Denmark , that ban has affected the sow trade and the finished pig trade in Germany, it was the Philippines department of agriculture that banned all meat imports from Germany. However, Southern European prices remain healthy with France and Spain seeing a small increase.

The EU spec SPP has risen this week in the UK to 0.56p which has brought the price to 152.20p/kg, through put total nearly 170k head similar to this time last year. Pig kill was probably down by 5.4k head compared to last week because of industrial action at one large processor causing disruption to pig kill. Demand is slow, however it looks like some products have been boosted by the BBQ trade, apart from one large processor who has added 1p to their weekly price stand on has been the name of the game today with only one processor taking a penny out.

The fresh meat trade has been in a similar vein with slow demand and no price increase this week across the board. Cull sow prices again have come back slightly by 2p/kg and store and weaner pigs also remain static.
